

The world today looks dramatically different from the world of last week, or even the world of yesterday, as COVID-19 spreads. The risks and dangers of global business are shifting rapidly, causing a degree of uncertainty not seen in recent history. However, uncertainty is the nature of risk, and the expertise of Polaris; even during this crisis – especially during this crisis – we're here to help.

Our immense global network of on-the-ground resources remains in operation, and our sophisticated and efficient intelligence capabilities are functioning without interruption. Even in this new landscape, Polaris can provide comprehensive and location-specific coverage wherever your business interests take you. Key services in this climate include medical extraction, and locally-sourced and expert protection.

As international companies weigh the detriments and benefits of slowing down operations, and face the realities of the prolonged and dramatic changes necessitated by the virus, they should know that Polaris' services can still be of use. We will continue to offer our usual, industry-leading services without interruption, while remaining attune to the unique risks that the virus poses.

We at Polaris hope that you, your colleagues and your families are safe and healthy during this unprecedented pandemic, and we're standing by to help you reach new levels of confidence in your security – even in this time of crisis. For more, visit us at polarisrsk.com.

Even in Times of Crisis...

*POLARIS Remains
Your Constant.*